HEAVY FINE AND SENTENCE IMPOSED ON FORMER SHERIFF

Calhoun, Ky., March.—W. A. Shackelford, formerly sheriff of McLean county, and J. E. Cowgill, a prominent citizen, were today convicted before the jury and Judge Slack in circuit court of interfering with the carrying out of justice. Shackelford was fined $429 and costs and sentenced to 48 days in jail, and Cowgill was fined $221 and sentenced to 23 days in jail.

The indictments against Shackelford and Cowgill were returned at the last term of court. They grew out of the trial against Mans Gibson who was charged with the killing of Arthur Hayden, who later was convicted and is now serving a term in the Eddyville penitentiary.

The indictment against Shackelford charged that after the case of Gibson had been submitted to the jury for final consideration, and while the jury was in the custody of Deputy Sheriff James Glenn, and was locked up in the room at the Capitol hotel for the night, he went to the hotel and procured the presence of J. E. Cowgill, one of the jurors, and after taking him out in the hall and holding a conference, the mind of Cowgill had been changed during the night from returning a verdict of guilty to that of innocent. The jury failed to agree on a verdict at this term, and were discharged, and the prosecution continued until the last term, when it was concluded, resulting in Gibson's being declared guilty and sentenced to the penitentiary.

On the trial Shackelford admitted that he did have a conversation with Cowgill, but that it was for the purpose of giving him a drink of liquor, and with no intention of interfering with justice.

Shackelford was represented by Joe Miller and Dick Alexander, while the prosecution was represented by the county attorney and Commonwealth's Attorney Smith.

Our Boys Have Gone Over the Top

THAT'S GOOD NEWS!

The Products of the Kentucky Farmers Brought 154 Millions More in 1917 than 1916.
THAT SOUNDS GOOD!

THE present high prices of merchandise don't look so bad when compared with the increased earning power of both farmer and miner. By persistent and unrelentless efforts we have assembled a big stock of good, reliable, standard grades of every-day merchandise that our customers can afford to buy to fully meet their demands for at least a year ahead. We already see the reflection of much higher prices for fall, and on higher and higher they will go as long as this war of liberty lasts. It may be one; it may be two; or even three years more is not impossible.

We have always felt that money would buy any time the things we need, but that is not the case now. Scarcity is looming up along every line. Shipping is slow, and sometimes delayed indefinitely. All our customers who want to come ahead of the game should load up on staple every-day necessities now and save the difference between present prices and those that are just ahead.

We Will Have No Formal Opening This Season

This is no time for formalities. Business; close, clean business, is an absolute necessity now, both for us and our customers.
